Mount Mitchel.

In Memory of Prof. Mitchel.

I have often seen Mount Mitchel, Covered in silent sleet and snow;
There Carolina's professor sleeps Where thousands of people go.

Like Moses of old on Nebo's top, Identifying his claim, He's buried in the solid rock While nation's read his fame;

Having identified his claim—Lost, wandering into the gorge below—Here in the darkness of night, His life was lost in the cataract of the Tow.

It seems that Job in his starry vault, While passing the mountain side, Dedicated the spot, the sage's lot, Eighty feet long by twenty wide.

High above the lichen and moss The proud balsams only wave;
The stars keep vigil by night While the winds sing requiems o'er his grave.

And the golden sun at the dawn of day,
As it kisses the silent tomb, Far off on the horizon below, Look like the midnight gloom.

Then we retrace our weary way Each to his distant home, Thinking of the laden monument there That marks the sages tomb.

Then let us cherish our University For the noble work it has done, That others may come with fame like this

From the ranks yet unborn.

Can you win? You realize that to win in anything these days, requires strength with mind and body in tune. A man or woman with disordered digestive organs is not in shape for a day's work or a day's play. How can they expect to win? Kodol For Dyspepsia contains the digestive juices of a healthy stomach in shape to perform its important function of supplying the body and brain with strength building blood. Digests what you eat, relieves Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Palpitation of the heart and Constipation.

Good Roads.

drag. Only plow one furrow. You may plow another furrow after the next rain. At each plowing you widen the roadbed two feet.

How many horses do you use?
Two, generally; three if it is just as handy; four when breaking colts—a good sold team in the centre and a colt on each side; two men on the drag—one to drive, the other to control the colts.
How do you drain the road?
If the earth is pushed in the middle of the road continually, the road will drain itself.

Why not make the drag out of plank?
You can, and do good work. But the split-log is best. The plank drag is not so stiff.

Why not make the drag of heavy sawed timber?
Because drags so made have a tendency to slip over the bumps.

Don't you grade up the road first?
No. The grading is done with the drag, gradually. By so doing, the road is solid all the time and is built on a solid foundation.

What does it cost to drag a mile of road a year?

The cost is variously estimated at from one to three dollars.

How do you keep the drag from dodging around sidewise?

By not loading it too heavily. If a drag dodges around the earth you are moving, it is because it is overloaded.
Will the drag road stand heavy hauling?

Yes and no. A dragged road will stand more heavy than an undragged road, but not so much as a macadamized or well-kept gravel road.

Will a drag help a sand road?

A sand road is a very different proposition from the black soil, clay or gumbo. An entirely different method must be adopted. Three things may be done to a sand road to make it better. First keep it wet; second, haul clay on to it; third, sprinkle it with crude oil, as they do in California and in some parts of Southern Kansas and Texas. The drag will be beneficial in keeping the sand road perfectly flat so that it will absorb moisture and retain it a long time.

To this catechism I would add the following "Don'ts": Don't drive too fast. Don't walk; get on the drag and ride. Don't be particular about matterial; almost any log will do. Don't try to drag with only one piece; use two.

Following is a diagram of the drag with explanation:

In this diagram a, a, are the two halves of a split log nine feet long, ten to twelve inches thick, set on edge, thirty inches apart, both flat sides to the front; b, b, strong oak or hedge bars, the ends of which are wedged in two-inch auger-holes bored through the slabs; dotted line, chains or strong wire. D, D, are rings to connect double-tree clevis. Hitch at D and stand at C, on a plank laid on the cross-bars, for ordinary work; or hitch at D and stand at E for ditch-cleaning or to make the drag throw more dirt to the left. To move dirt to the right reverse position of driver and hitch. If working a clay or gumbo road, put iron, old wagon-tire, or something of the sort, on lower edge of drag at end of six months; for softer soil at the end of twelve months.

Hendersonville's Excellent Depot Accommodations.

Hendersonville is the second resort city in the state. Thousands of tourists and visitors come here each summer, and naturally, they arrive during all kinds of weather. Practically all summer the grounds back of the depot where the hacks and more especially where the hotel busses stand, has been a sea of mud and mire. It has been almost impossible for passengers to get into the hotel busses without getting ankle deep in mud.

Hendersonville is a resort town.
Everything must be done to make the town more attractive to visitors. The first impression is the most lasting one, very often, and the impression received by the arriving passenger is that he has gotten off, not at a noted mountain resort, but at some little old crossroads station.
The only things in sight at the Hendersonville depot is mud, tan bark and mud. When the would-be visitor starts for the bus he thinks there is nothing but mud, and before he gets inside, he knows it.

There should be something done to remedy this evil at once. We have heard of one man, who has much money invested here, talking of getting permission to dump a few cars of ballast there. But this is no business for a private individual. The whole town is interested vitally in having a decent spot for the passengers to arrive and depart from, and no one individual should be expected to bear the whole expense.

As a matter of fact our present depot facilities are entirely inadequate to the needs of this growing town.

We need, not only a much larger and more commodious building, but a great train shed, stretching far down the track, where passengers may alight and be protected from the rain.

The train shed has been promised many months, but a close inspection of the depot fails to reveal it.

There is talk of a strong committee going to Washington and interviewing the Southern Railway officials. If we cannot get a new depot immediately, it is the sentiment of all that a train shed is an absolute necessity and that the mud hole surrounding the depot should at once be remedied.

If Hendersonville is ever to amount to much as a winter resort, our visitors must at least have the privilege of getting dry shod to the hotel busses.

Is The Moon Inhabited.

Science has proven that the moon has an atmosphere, which makes life in some Editors Slight Mistake.

There is a joke being told here at the expense of a modest young newspaper man in a neighboring town which is so good it ought to be true. The young man in question, it appears was recently invited to a party at a residence where the home had recently been blessed with an addition to the family. Accompanied by his best girl he met his hostess at the door, and, after the customary salutations, asked after the welfare of the baby.
The lady was suffering from a severe cold, which made her slightly deaf, and she mistakenly supposed that the young man was inquiring about her cold. She replied that, though she usually had one every winter, this was the worst one she had ever had; it had kept her awake at night a great deal at first and confined her to her bed. Then, noticing that the scribe was becoming pale and nervous, she said she could see by his looks that he was going to have one just like hers, and asked him if he wished to lie down. The paper came out as usual the next week, but the editor has given up inquiring about babies.
